Picture-Word Lotto

This activity gives students a chance to practice reading and identifying the meaning of words. Students read color-coded word cards and place them on the matching picture on a game board. Each vowel or vowel pattern is printed in a specific color, to indicate the sound. For example, the letter \textit{a} is printed in a bright red color to indicate the short \textit{a} sound. However, the \textit{a}_e pattern is printed in a dark red color to indicate the long vowel sound.

To prepare the activity: 1) Print the game boards on heavy white paper or white cardstock. Each board has a left and right page. There are two ways you can put them together. If the pages were printed on paper, glue them to the inside of a file folder, with the center edges at the fold line. If the pages were printed on cardstock, laminate them separately and then tape them together along the center edges, so that they can fold to be stored. 2) Print the word card pages on white cardstock. Laminate them, then cut the cards apart. Place the pieces in a labeled envelope or plastic bag, and store them inside the folded game board.

Note: In some games, all of the words have the same phonetic pattern. In other games, the left side of the folder has one pattern and the right side has a different pattern. For example, the Short \textit{A} folder has all short \textit{a} pictures and words. The Short/Long \textit{A} folder has short \textit{a} pictures on the left side and long \textit{a} pictures on the right side, with corresponding word cards. At the top of the page, the sound pictures, from the sound story, show the correct sound.

To play the game: One student can do this activity independently, or students can work in pairs, taking turns. Students should start by saying the sound for the letter pattern(s) and sound picture(s) at the top of the board. Then students select a word card, read the word, and place it directly on top of the matching picture. Continue until all the words have been placed on the board.

Extension Activity: After placing all the words on the board, students could copy the words onto lined paper. They could also draw a small picture beside each word to illustrate it. They might also choose one or more words, and write a sentence containing each word.
